BENGAL PAST AND PRESENT

A journal of modern Indian and Asian History

Started in 1907, BENGAL PAST & PRESENT with its fine record of service in the field of historical research and scholarship for a century, has earned distinction as one of India's prestigious journals, maintaining an international standard of excellence. Published under the auspices of THE CALCUTTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY, it features articles and original papers on topics of interest to students of history, university and college teachers, research scholars, members of learned societies, and discriminating readers. Its contributors, drawn from all over the world, include scholars of repute, competent to write with authority on subjects of their choice as well as young promising workers engaged in research and advanced study. The circulation is widely dispersed throughout the world.
